After cocktails in the grand surroundings, it was time for guests to migrate for a riveting discussion about Rizzoli's new book The Country House: Past, Present, Future, led by BBC World News America's Laura Trevelyan. But it was the little details, like the tablescapes designed by Sarah Magness and the potted topiaries that punctuated the entry portico (conceived by Lady Henrietta Spencer-Churchill), that contributed most to the evening's Old World meets New World elegance.
